What sets us apart

Everyone at Blythe Rose Dementia Care works tirelessly and with respect to uphold dignity, preserve independence and provide a secure, safe environment where individuals can feel settled and fulfilled.

Your loved one will be encouraged to participate in daily life going on around them, supported by discussions, reminiscing and a wide range of enriching activities. Whether we are using innovative VR headsets to induce the sense of calm or enjoyment that comes from familiar scenarios, or sitting together and eating meals, 'family style', we see the individual not just the disease and support each resident to thrive.

Our approach is holistic, encompassing social engagement and stimulating activities to preserve key skills and independence. Good nutrition and hydration and gentle exercise all have a part to play in reducing anxieties and managing behaviours.

Used as appropriate, professional interventions keep loved ones, fellow residents and staff members safe. These can range from simple environmental changes, such as gently moving a resident away from a situation that is causing distress or anxiety, to pharmaceutical interventions prescribed by our clinicians to help alleviate symptoms of dementia for residents' wellbeing.

Our highly-skilled, multi-disciplinary team benefits from the thought-leadership and guidance of a specialist consultant and visiting old age psychiatrist who is a nationally renowned specialist in assessing memory problems such as the early diagnosis and treatment of Alzheimer's disease and other types of dementia.

For family members it can be very reassuring to know that Blythe Rose Dementia Care offers a lifelong home - a bespoke environment, with an expert team working to manage the progression of the disease and changing needs, without the stress and disruption of having to find another home.
